

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

American Review of Canadian Studies special issue on Canada-U.S. Relations

The editors of the American Review of Canadian Studies invite submissions for the journal's biennial Thomas O. Enders Special Issue on Canada-U.S. Relations, which they plan to publish in late 2023. Full-length article submissions from all disciplines and from interdisciplinary perspectives are welcome, but they should, in some way, focus on the issue's main theme: the past, present, or future of Canada-U.S. Relations.

The Enders Special Issue is named in honor of the former United States Ambassador to Canada (1976-81). Among the many interests Thomas Enders pursued during his distinguished career in foreign service was the promotion of Canadian Studies in his own country. The Enders Foundation, which he established, provides funding for the publication of this biennial special issue.

Deadline for submissions for the 2023 Enders Special Issue of ARCS: January 15, 2023. All completed article manuscripts for this special issue should follow ARCS's regular guidelines for length and citation format. See the "Instructions for Authors" page on the ARCS website for details.
